Scaling into Academic Service Learning

Wednesday, November 1

Facilitated by Travus Burton & Jess Tess-Navarro

In this session, presenters will share how to:

- Find a partner, and pair community needs with learning outcomes
- Scale in, scope of project (1-class-1-day projects → 1-class-full-semester → MSL-multiple-semesters), logistics
- Set expectations with community partners and students
- Manage ethical considerations, risks and life happening
- Assess, process and learn through guided reflection both for students and instructors

The Oakland University “Facing Project”

Wednesday, November 8

Facilitated by Travus Burton & Jess Tess-Navarro

In this session, presenters will:

- Explain the Facing Project focus and timeline
- Share how to get involved as students and faculty
- Discuss benefits and outcomes of the OU Facing Project for students and faculty: build empathy and responsible citizenship, inspire informed action and service, create community-based research opportunities

“Mirror, Mirror...” The Art of Reflection Before, During and After Student Experiences

Wednesday, November 15

Facilitated by Travus Burton

In this session, the presenter will:

- Discuss the purpose of reflection as a vehicle for learning and as a tool for assessment
- Share a model for the facilitation of student and faculty reflection before, during and after student experiences
- Provide a format for guided questions that drive thoughtful discussions and written responses while intentionally connecting experiences to the achievement of course learning objectives
