

MA & MS in Multidisciplinary Studies—Individualized Option

Program Path:

IDS Type: Unrestricted IDS

Program Type: Floating IDS Program

Description: Multidisciplinary studies programs are designed for individuals with unique professional and educational objectives not readily met by traditional master's degree programs. Through advisement and within certain guidelines, students may design their own programs. There are four program options available: individualized, environmental research and education, human services administration, or public relations management. Upon satisfactory completion of an approved course of study, either a master of arts or a Master of Science degree is awarded, depending on the scope and content of the program. (From website.)
