AOA Honor Medical Society Inducts OUWB Students

Oakland University William Beaumont School of Medicine (OUWB) inducted 11 students from the class of 2016 into the Alpha Omega Alpha (AOA) Honor Medical Society during a ceremony at Meadow Brook Hall.

The students who received the AOA honors include: James David, Danny Mammo, Neesurg Mehta,Tori Nault, Roslyn Oakley, James Payne, Kelsey Satkowiak, Kerolos, Shenouda, Erik Sweet, Omar Yaldo and Raymond Yeow.

During his remarks, OUWB Founding Dean Robert Folberg, M.D. emphasized to the students that their AOA membership is a milestone of exceptional achievement.

For Raymond Yeow, the induction is a momentous occasion during this important fourth year of medical school.

"The AOA Honor Medical Society has a long history of recognizing medical students and physicians for their academic and professional achievements. It is an incredible honor to be recognized for all of the hard work I've put into my medical training, and I am extremely humbled to have been selected into such a prestigious society," says Yeow. "I was grateful to be able to celebrate this evening with my family, classmates, and professors; all of whom have played an integral role in my medical education and training experience."

Back row, from left: Omar Yaldo and James Payne.
Front row, from left: Erik Sweet, Raymond Yeow, Tori Nault, Kelsey Satkowiak and James David. Not pictured: Neesurg Meehta, Kerolos Shenouda, Roslyn Oakley and Danny Mammo.